

IIMN designing innovative methods of teaching: Rastogi

■ Staff Reporter

WHILE appreciating the facilities developed at Indian Institute of Management, Nagpur (IIMN), Vikaschandra Rastogi, Principal Secretary, Higher and Technical Education, Maharashtra said, "IIM Nagpur offers a wide variety of choices to budding management professionals. Courses here have been designed as per the emerging trends and requirements of the industries. The focus of these programmes is to bridge the gaps which the industry feels are there in the young graduates. I am happy to see that the experienced teaching faculty at IIM Nagpur is designing innovative methods to impart such kinds of skills to these aspiring professionals."

Principal Secretary visited the IIMN recently. Director Dr Bhimaraya Metri took him around 132-acre ultra-modern campus.

Rastogi was accompanied by Dr Sanjay Thakre, Joint Director (Higher Education); Dr Manoj Daigavane, Joint Director (Technical Education). Dr Metri along with Lt Col Makrand Alur, CAO of IIM Nagpur welcomed Rastogi at their campus.

"IIMN has a world-class infrastructure. IIMN creates a perfect environment for any educational institution which inspires and motivates faculty as well as students," Rastogi observed. Rastogi stated, "Considering the demographic dividend of India, there is a need for more and more such institutions to come up in this sector, to inspire the budding students for moving up the ladder. IIMN provides such opportunities to explore their potential and to get jobs not only in India but also abroad."
